Introduction

I once sat in a waiting room as a young man, waiting for an optometrist I think, reading magazines to pass the time. I remember reading an article in one of the mainstream magazines, about starvation around the world. I always see the same images in my head when I think about the children dying the worst most painful death possible by the thousands. An image from that magazine, you see I have a heap of younger brothers and sisters and as I looked at this picture of the family dying of malnutrition, I couldn't help but see the faces of those siblings on the sickened children within the image. I remember feeling so helpless and hurt and I quickly changed articles to move away from those feelings. I turned to another article. In this new article I could see pictures of a ship dumping grain into the ocean. It turned out a particular country had had a bumper crop and in order to maintain market prices they were dumping the excess to ensure it wasn't saturating the market. In that moment I was angrier than I think I have ever been since or before. To know that these children were dying so terribly and that instead of feeding them we dumped food into the sea was to me eviller than anything I had known in my life. I knew without a doubt that the system we were allowing ourselves to be guided by was wrong. It took some time to understand why this was happening and more importantly how it could be fixed.

Call me foolish but I think we are better than this, we are better than the war and starvation the inequality and homelessness and all this corruption. I believe that we are powerful beings capable of great things. I believe at our core we are inherently good. That greed and the lust for power comes from being taught not from within our soul and that given the right environment and teaching humankind is worthy and can bring light with it rather than darkness. I believe we have a destiny of unimaginable proportion and that we as a species are ready take a hold of our destiny and move forward in our evolution.

I write this and the parts that follow as an inspiration of what we can be, of what we are capable of, but also as a guide to show how easy it really is for us to take control of the situation and make change.

Ever since the mentioned incident in the waiting room I have looked at the situation the world has found itself in and searched for a solution. It seems the answer is easy to see yet hard to grasp.

Over the decades proceeding today we have feared. As our environment is desecrated before our eyes, as we have again and again seen the brave stand in front of the needless destruction of our beautiful world, only to be violated and fined, all for greed. Social standards have dropped, unemployment and homelessness ring wrote because our technology has advanced beyond the need for menial laborers. We fear as we get set free from the need to toil for an invisible slave master. It's been so wrong for so long. And now has come the Virus.

How it came about can only really be speculated at, with many stories and possibilities abound, but what becomes apparent more and more is that our world has come to a crux, a time of change. The destruction to our civil liberty has been equal to the destruction of economy and life will never be the same as it once was.

How this change to our world comes should a choice for us all, not just a few. We have all become too aware of the power corporations have come to hold on that choice and where their intent and morality leads us.

Thomas Jefferson taught that its democratic people's responsibility to have revolution once a generation. That it was the only way of stopping the inevitable corruption that seeps within to a democracy with a financial system. We have all seen how power and greed has now near destroyed our democracy and our world entirely.

I'm a peaceful person and see that the violent revolutions of the past not only can't work in today's society of modern military but that we have evolved in our thinking and being that it no longer should ever be a way to overcome these issues. War and violent politics NEED to become a thing from the past.

But violence isn't the only form of revolution. Another is a political revolution, but we have seen that unfortunately with the money now involved in our politics that won't work. The last is a financial revolution. This is where money is used to manipulate the system of governance, and we see it used all around the world by the superrich and powerful.

The Evolution is more than a booklet or webpage outlining what is wrong with the world and the financial system, it's a proposal to the free people of the world outlining an avenue of solution through the means of a business plan designed to change the way resources are managed and bring us into a beautiful new free world.

This IS The people's financial revolution. This IS the Evolution.

THE EVOLUTION COOP

The Evolution Coop is basically a self-owned corporation, Or Anti-corporation in saying that it has no person or group at the top of the pyramid receiving any financial benefit or profit from its activities. No-one will get “rich” in the commonly understood way. It treats everyone exactly the same and is there for the benefit of all. It is managed by a group of democratically elected directors that work under the strict guidelines set out in the Evolution Guiding Principles. It has been designed and created to build an abundance economy society based on community ideals, ecological principles, and human rights.

This book is here to help explain how The Evolution intends to do that, why we need to and would do it, and how you can help.

The Evolution Guiding Principles

- To treat all as equals with no prejudice and to follow the declaration of human rights.
- To provide the highest-level quality of life for its members in health, education, living environment, lifestyle, and all aspects of the human existence.
- To provide all the needs and services to its members to maintain a first class technologically advancing society.
- To promote diversity in people, culture and thought in order to encourage and ensure the maximum cultural and spiritual growth of the society.

THE END OF TRADE

Trade through money and barter is wrong for so many reasons, but for many it's not easily apparent why. Over the past few decades there have been several studies on these systems and through them have been revealed the fundamental flaws of the financial system. If you haven't studied the work accomplished by Jaques Fresco and the Venus Project it's a great place to start in understanding these flaws, and how they are effecting the world today, but one of the greatest flaws is that a financial or even a barter system promotes scarcity.

i.e. If a farmer produces eggs and trades these eggs either for money or goods, and this is how he supports his family and makes his living, he can sustain that living only as long as no one else produces eggs. If everyone around him produced their own eggs than he would no longer be able to trade them making them worthless and him no longer able to sustain his living. Also, if he had a bumper crop, he can't just start handing eggs out to everyone because that again would lessen their value.

In the real world this means that container loads of grain get dumped into the sea when children are starving.

Another fundamental flaw is that it creates inequality. Money only works when one person has, and another has not and will always need a class system of haves and have nots to exist.

“Until there is no first or second-class citizens in any nation, there will be war.” Hallie Selassie

Another of the most devastating problems that comes from a money system is that it promotes some of humanities worst flaws such as greed and lack of empathy for people and the environment and places us constantly into positions where we are better off personally, that our own level of financial freedom will be increased, by doing things that are against our internal moral compass.

Finally and arguably the most destructive problem to ours society in our use of money is that a financial or trade system inadvertently leads to a system of financial slavery as we work to make money move instead of working to supply what we need.

In a world of potential abundance, a financially based system stands in the way of the core fundamental freedoms and rights that come with the human condition. It is indirectly in competition with health, education, security, the environment, lifestyle, freedom, abundance, equality and human rights and so much more.

We need a new system. One that promotes abundance, equality, community values and environmental protection. We need to move away from a system of greed, debt, slavery and destruction. We need to move into a resource based economy or free economy where resources are distributed evenly and sustainably and so allow us to move into a new era. The Evolution aims to make this a reality.

WHY OWN ANYTHING WHEN YOU CAN HAVE EVERYTHING?

In our current world we are taught to desire things, that material possession makes us happy. The more pieces of this and that that we have the better off and happier we will be. Many people are seeing that this isn't the case. That we don't really need 4 cars, 6 televisions a house with 10 rooms we never use in it and all the material trappings that come with it to make us happy. But having access to luxury and comfort can certainly make life easier.

Concepts about how individual possession work in a world without money is a subject of deep consideration and has many angles. The idea The Evolution is to set people free from the self-slavery a monetary system creates and to allow them access to all the abundance that life has to offer. In no way does it ever wish to infringe on individuality and in fact desires to promote it, but we also need to change the hording materialistic attitudes and mentalities that we have allowed to come into our society.

In the Evolution nobody really 'owns' anything. People have and always will possess things.

Personal items, clothing, items of special personal value are necessary as part of the human condition but in order for our society to move forward away from the issues we are facing today our concepts of ownership need to change.

Although details of how this will evolve will only be seen through time the basic concept is that things will be in a way borrowed from The Evolution everything in Evolution will be setup with the best of quality and durability in mind. A member will have access to anything you could imagine but only on a temporary arrangement.

i.e. If a member wants to go for a trip on a luxury boat they will be able to go and have access to one as long as they wish, and when they are finished with it and ready to do something else it will be returned ready for the next person to use.

When you really start to think about possession, owning things holds us back. If we want to travel the more, we have the more difficulties arise. In a world where you have access to free travel, accommodation, food and experiences having to take care of mundane things becomes an unnecessary difficulty.

Everywhere you go in The Evolution will be places with different forms of equipment and entertainment. There will be places to listen and play music and places to watch movies, places to do art, places to study and places to just relax all in a community atmosphere, places to play golf or to play games or sports of all kinds. There will be places set up with all sorts of things to do and experience with an intent to allow people the opportunity to experience the very best life has to offer.

Whatever the society can provide as a member you have the opportunity to use. Whatever a member wants they will have access to free of charge with the only true restrictions being respect for the item and the return of the item at the end of use.

For many generations we have had the need to hold onto things, as status symbols for our ego we hoard wealth or in case we need or want things latter, but in a world of abundance where everybody has everything, you never need to worry about latter or tomorrow as you will still have access to whatever at that time and personal possession gains you no esteem at all.

When you really think about it, why own anything when you have access to everything?

THE CONCEPT, GROWING THE EVOLUTION

We have realized as a society that the banks and big money private interests have taken control of our democracy, and they no longer have our best wishes at heart, especially in regards to abundance and money as that is the way they have gained their control. Many of us have decided to go off the grid, self-sufficient, organic and away from the money system and the oligarchies controlling it, this is great except that it limits our technology. If someone breaks their back for example, they are in trouble without going back to the money world or if we want a computer or television again back to the money world. Or if they travel again back to the money world. But if a society goes 'off the grid' it can change this and much more.

When a person decides to go 'off the grid' they first have to buy the land, and the solar panels and tractor etc. but once they do they can grow their own food and supply their own power. The same concept works as a society. We need to as a society 'go off the grid' in order to change things, to get away from the oligarchy's controlling us. In order to do that we need to buy our own infrastructure. Wow that sounds huge, but really, it's not. not using the power of numbers and the power of the people, and by being smart.

The adage that with money it is easy to make money is very true. We see it constantly with the gap growing between rich and poor. That when someone gets to an amount of wealth by reinvesting that wealth in profitable ventures one pays for the next, allowing their wealth to grow rapidly. By having an amount of financial capital available for investment into profitable ventures one can increase one's own financial position.

Our world has been designed to make it very hard to reach that point of capital.

Our society is geared to make sure that our money is well tied up. We are taught that the more money we have the more money we should spend, as a person gets more wealth, they should have a bigger house and more toys. This ensures that only a very small group of people ever make it to that point where they have access to the needed capital to start making a really significant income from investment or business options, but once they do they skyrocket financially beyond the imaginings of the everyday person.

Today corporations with incredible wealth buy and sell businesses, all but at whim making millions of dollars for those very few at the top. We buy the goods of these corporations so these few individuals can live in total opulence.

By the Evolution buying the infrastructure it requires as profitable businesses, the businesses will essentially pay for themselves, especially combined with the principles of abundance that will naturally come from breaking away from a profit scarcity mentality.

The Evolution has been designed to stream all of its profits into growing and sustaining an ever-expanding society away from the need of money. All of the profits made from Evolution will be used to firstly increase the financial power of the corporation in order for it to grow, but more importantly to build and provide for the society growing within.

In truth individually it will cost next to NOTHING to get the infrastructure in place. A relatively small number of people $10 a month in together makes a very substantial income that can be then turned into those profitable ventures and rolled over starting a snowball effect allowing the infrastructure to essentially buy itself. As Evolution grows larger and larger it will allow more people to move into the newly built infrastructure and be supplied by Evolution production. By 'closing the loop' as explained latter, each business will get more and more profitable allowing more and more resource to be available for the society.

As it grows The Evolution will buy assets with the intent to increase its own income but also to acquire all the needed assets to close the loop in the production and service needs of the society, as well as continuously growing the society.

Eventually as members start to attain full status and allowed to move away from money, the profit from these businesses will be broken into two directions. Firstly, growing the amount of profit/infrastructure businesses and then secondly supplying all the goods required by the growing society. It will act almost like a very large, very rapidly growing Kibbutz community at first until we reach the point of true self sufficiency within our society and start to utilize available abundance technology. At that point, when utilizing the principles explained in this book, it will be VERY hard for the world not to see the truth about money and scarcity. When we start printing out 3d cars and housing etc. and our people live in abundance and luxury without having to work, people will start to wake up VERY quickly.

When great, great, grandfather Rothschild started the world bank he realized that the way to make money was through loaning money to countries not individuals, as individuals were prone to accidents or unforeseeable events where countries were receiving income from many thousands of sources rather than one and this made it much more secure. Understanding that concept and using it makes this plan very secure and VERY strong.

We have the music arranged, we have the production and the art prepared, the booklet is in your hands and so we start.

THE END OF CORRUPTION

In our world today bribery and corruption run writhe. From the police officer receiving a payment from a criminal through to our highest government officials receiving payments from big corporations we see today more and more that those at the top of the leadership pyramids are being corrupted. This NEEDS to end NOW for humanity to move forward from the dire situations we find ourselves in today.

People in our society are manipulated by wealth and possession. A person can become more influential as they move up the socio-economic ladder through what they can do for people. When one person has more than another, it gives them the ability to make them do things they would never do without manipulation.

A person in today's society can quite literally buy themselves an army by paying people to do their bidding and get them to do horrendous things through wealth manipulation. A corporation can manipulate even the greatest people through the intimidation that the power of wealth gives that corporation, or through bribery again from the power of wealth.

In the Evolution no one really owns anything. No one can say if you do this act of evil, I'll give you this thing you haven't got, because everyone has the same. The ability to bribe and manipulate is gone. A person with bad intent has no way of manipulating people to their bidding.

In the Evolution the elected officials receive nothing. They are STRICKTLY forbidden to receive anything from outside The Evolution coop and will receive no lifestyle benefits more than any other person. They cannot be bribed as the ability to bribe has been removed and intimidation is no longer possible either. In fact, the only thing that an official will EVER receive for doing their very hard job will be the gratitude of the people, and that only if they do the right thing by the people

This will ensure naturally that only people with true intent, with the interest of society at the essence of their heart will step forward to fulfil these very stressful and difficult positions. A culture of true community will be at the heart of leadership, as only self-sacrificing individuals would ever take on the burden of leadership.

With the head of our society driven with community and self-sacrifice it will be a government like no other in our history.

THE ONLINE DEMOCRACY

Over the decades proceeding today we have lost the power of true democracy, in recent years governments have even started to stop peaceful protest action, a core and fundamental aspect of a true democracy. We have seen great candidates step up with true social justice at heart but even with massive numbers following them big money stops what should be stunning democracy in action. For eons now we have been indoctrinated and controlled by a few and this needs to stop once and for all.

Although the concept will need the work of other minds to truly be adapted to its optimum, the basic principle is that within the Evolution web page will be an online democracy platform similar to a social networking platform. All members will have access to this platform and the forums available within it. A major function of the page will be a button that allows for a meeting, if at any time within a 24hour period 10% of the members press that button a meeting is called within the hour, day or night. This meeting will be held online in webcam format allowing members to see all that is said. A group of administrators will operate the chat functions of the members view monitoring trends and bringing forth questions to the directors as the meeting proceeds. A vote function is in place and can be called for at any time depending on the trend of the chat. I.e. if someone says I call for a vote on .... In the chat and it receives X amount of 'likes' depending on traffic and people participating that vote can be called for. This will include the removal of elected officials.

Any person from among the members can step forth and say I wish to be elected for this position and this is the reason why, and if they receive the support from others through what they have said and done then so be it, as long as a vote isn't called against them.

We need to move into a new paradigm a new world, one where we have the right to control our own destiny, Anarchy in oneness if that makes sense, no more this person is better or that person, just truth. No one will be more important or hold power in Evolution. There will be guides, servants to the wills and whims of the people, but no more corrupted manipulated egotistical fools. The heads of the society will only be there because of the outstanding devotion they have to the people because that the only way they can ever be there.

'Democracy is one person, one vote and a full discussion of the issues that affect us. Oligarchy is billionaires buying elections and voter suppression'
Bernie Sanders

CLOSING THE LOOP

It is hard to fathom but very well known that with true sustainable ecologically friendly technique and technology, the world we live in has the ability to create and sustain abundance for our society. We hold ourselves back from using these technologies and practises mainly due to financial consideration, someone won't make as much money along the way. It's sad, but due to the financial system in the world we need to look at what these technologies do for the individual's financial situation and how it effects profit, rather than the society.

The main objective with The Evolution is to become self-sufficient away from financial system in a way to make it possible to break away from the profit mentality. By doing this it will allow us to tap into these technologies in order to release the natural abundance available.

In order to become a self-sufficient society, The Evolution needs to control all of its own production to supply the needs of its society. By gaining control of the whole production loop it effectively cuts the costs of operation and eventually the need to rely on the outside system at all.

i.e. In brief: The Evolution needs to provide clothes for its members. The main costs in producing clothes, once the equipment is owned to manufacture, are the power to run the equipment and the fibres and material required, as well as man hours. If the Evolution owns the equipment producing the electricity it cuts that cost closing that loop, if it also owns a material production facility it also cuts that cost. If it owns the base level production through to finished product on all its needs The Evolution effectively removes the need for profit or money at all.

THE 'PROFIT' IN SUSTAINABILITY

Part of the mandate of The Evolution is to increase the quality of life and lifestyle and to provide abundance to its society members. It will always be in the best interest of The Evolution to use sustainable technology as to do otherwise is to potentially impede on the quality of life of its members. It will also be in the best interest of the co-op to use only the very best equipment and technology as not only is this in line with providing the best quality of lifestyle, the longer the item lasts the less that the corporation has to spend and supply to fulfil its duty of abundance to the society.

In our world today we design things to break and become obsolete to make sure that the money keeps moving, planned obsolescence is becoming more and more common in our production of equipment and technology. In a financial system planned obsolescence naturally becomes a common occurrence because if a consumer must replace an item, it creates more profit for the producer, it is in their best interest to make it break. In the Evolution society it will be the opposite. It will be in the co-ops best financial and obligatory interest to make things last and be as strong as possible.

i.e. When the Evolution has the ability to produce a piece of equipment, having gained all of the production loop it needs to supply that equipment to the members. If that equipment breaks it needs to be replaced so it is in the corps best interest to build that equipment as good and strong as possible in order to have to replace it less.

This along with the other The Evolution concepts will do much to stop the wastage and destruction we find in our goods production today.

CONSUMPTION, THE POWER OF THE PEOPLE

In our world today massive corporations owned by a very few shareholders make huge amounts of profit through our everyday consumption. The things we eat through to the clothes we wear all help contribute to these few individuals living not only in opulence but positions of incredible power. Through our consumption some individuals have even attained and maintain wealth and power enough to manipulate whole governments.

As The Evolution grows, going through the transition between a finance system and a resource based economy, it will take control of more and larger businesses allowing the corporation to eventually supply our existing society's needs through a series of large entities, such as grocery markets and apartment stores. The profit from these stores and markets will no longer be streamed towards a small group of individuals but rather towards growing building and sustaining a system designed towards true community and ecological values, in benefit of us all. As the Evolution grows it will take control of the financial power of the people streaming it away from the few and back towards the many.

One of the largest advantages that the Evolution will have with the different branches of business that it goes into is the already captured consumer market available through its sponsors. As it grows sponsors will be made aware of each business that the Evolution takes on and will know that if they purchase goods or services from that business any profit that the business makes will go back to making the society grow quicker and their individual invite into the new society come sooner. A sponsor will know that using the Evolution facility or buying goods from the Evolution store is in effect the same as their sponsorship. They will also receive a bonus discount from the store. This means effectively if they shop at Evolution stores, they will be easily able to receive a larger discount from the purchase than the cost of their sponsorship.

Utilizing the Evolution abundance principles and the power of the people the Evolution will grow to become an anti-corporation like no other, with as much financial power as any corporation the world has ever seen and all that power will be directed towards building the infrastructure needed for a resource based economy society and moving our whole race towards a new age.

LIFESTYLE, A PRECIOUS RESOURCE

One of the founding concepts of The Evolution is to supply the highest-level quality of life possible for all its members. This is reflected in health and education, the environment, and our building, it's also reflected in member's lifestyle. Comfort art and beauty will be commonplace in The Evolution communities. With the use of abundance technology areas will be set out with the best of available equipment and settings. When The Evolution builds and provides a table it is in the best interests of the coop to use only the most sustainable, well-built and beautiful table that its technology and resources allows as it lasts longer and needs replacing less and will also increase the quality of members lives to have it the most beautiful and comfortable possible. This concept flows through everything that The Evolution builds and uses.

Another very important aspect of lifestyle is travel. Being able to travel and experience things and places is vital in order to be able achieve an abundant lifestyle and as such will be considered a precious resource within the Evolution.

Experiencing new things is how people learn and grow and reach their full potential. To this end one of the main avenues of business that the Evolution will go into early on will be travel and tourism oriented.

Cafes, Restaurants and even resorts will be considered important infrastructure as well as the ability to get from place to place. These businesses will be managed with the same concept as all the businesses in the Evolution where all the 'profit' is available for use by society members and closing the loop in production is core.

i.e. In owning a resort some of the main outgoings will be food and electricity. By owning the food production and the power station it significantly cuts the costs of that resort allowing for more member use.

Eventually most of the areas you go in the Evolution will be at least as comfortable and beautiful as our modern day five star resorts with the exception being places that are deliberately set up for people who wish a different experience in life but in the beginning the Evolution will own many places for the early members to experience the best of what life has to offer.

Beautiful gardens, stunning buildings, places to eat and places to play and a release from the stress and pressure created from a profit mentality are all part of what comes from removing the restrictions of the finance system and treating lifestyle as a precious resource.

TECHNOLOGY IN ABUNDANCE

Over the last century through the industrial revolution we have had many incredible scientific and engineering breakthroughs in the field of abundance that have never seen financial backing or significant advancement due to the effects they would have on scarcity or jobs within their viable industry. From the ability to grow and harvest fruit to complex robotics capable of constructing things with ease all have been placed on the pile of not financially viable.

In the Evolution ecologically sustainable abundance creating technologies will be among the most important and worthy of research category's as it will always be in the best interest of The Evolution to produce in this manner.

Today advancements in 3d printing and robotics are breaking boundaries in what we as a society can do. A person can now quite literally, with the right equipment, press a button and have 3d printing and robotics build almost anything and with next to no cost.

i.e. A vehicle can be 3d printed using mainly hemp plastic, completely renewable and very easily acquired at a resource level. It can be powered by a completely renewable power source, manufactured by 3d printing and robotics, and can be printed and manufactured at a press of a button.

So why aren't there 3d printed vehicles everywhere if they cost nothing? Because scarcity is how money is made. If there were vehicles everywhere available to anyone, they would have no value.

As a society in our communities, although technology brings us many advantages, we need to find a very careful balance of people's desires. Some people don't want high levels of technology in their day to day lives and this must be catered for in the society. Some areas will be completely free of technology for people to be able to get back to basics in the way they like to. Yet others will offer state of the art comfort and luxury wherever you go.

As for production once The Evolution has taken control of the ability to do 3d printing and robotics and has control of the production of resources at a base level it will literally be able to print anything without 'cost'. While money still exists, it will all but literally be able to print money in printing goods and selling them.

AN ARMY OF VOLUNTEERS

In the Evolution members have a lot more free time available. After they have finished their time at work to cover their production needs, they no longer have any restrictions on how they spend their time. Some will travel and some will study some will do art and some will do nothing at all, but another group will volunteer.

Volunteers in the Evolution will be looked at as among the most respected members of society for what they do for the people. They will be the ones that will be given the best seat in a dining area and their words will stand out in a community meetings and will often be the ones that are voted onto The Evolution council positions.

Many people aspire to help or serve people. Often people go into the field of work they do not because of the money they will make but rather what they can do for society or people. Teachers, Doctors, scientist and emergency personnel are among a few obvious ones but there are many others. In a system based on production rather than making money move around the desire to help people and society doesn't diminish but rather grows.

Other people do the work they do for the love of their trade. A chef will often become a chef not for the money made but for the love of cooking and delighting people with their food or an architect will go into their profession to be able to draw and create marvellous structures. When these people no longer must work to support their living it won't mean that the love, they have for the things they do will instantly disappear. A chef will still love cooking and an architect will still love drawing and creating.

Once finished their production hours these people will be free to do as they want, to come and go as they please, but the wealth of their experience will always be highly valued and respected. They will be encouraged and invited to spend whatever time they wish in positions of guidance among the services they have trained in.

All service needs will be covered by new society members doing the hours required to fulfil their life production requirements. There will never be a need for volunteers to work as the continuous production of the society will be covered by the new society members and so anything a volunteer adds will be a boost to society production and needs.

Volunteers that dedicate their lives towards their fields of work will end up in positions of authority in their services giving guidance to those new society members learning the craft.

i.e. In a food service area new members assigned to ensuring production will take care of all the mundane tasks cleaning and doing prep and if a volunteer is unavailable, cooking meals but if an experienced volunteer that has worked in the service for years is available and wants to cook then they will have the option to become the chef and direct the kitchen making more food available of a higher standard.

Or in a mechanical workshop, new members will keep the day to day running of the facility under control. Ensuring the productivity of the workshop but if an experienced volunteer was available they would be welcome to come and go adding advice and their technical experience and if they dedicated enough time would naturally find themselves in a position of direction and respect through the work they do.

People naturally hate to be forced to do things and rebel against being told what to do but given the option to do what they love are naturally productive. This system of volunteers takes away from that NEED to work, to make money and to pay the bills and allows people to become naturally productive. It will ensure only people truly impassioned about what they do and with a desire to do more for people and society will end up in authority positions in our industries and services and increase the productivity of our society in ways yet unimaginable.

NO MORE COAL, GAS OR OIL

Over the last decade the story of early 20th century inventor Nikola Tesla has come to be well known. Tesla invented A.C. power and some of the world's most incredible advancements. His career supposedly ended very rapidly when he invented a free energy device and started building Wardenclyffe tower. He could use this tower to collect and transfer energy in of the earth's atmosphere allowing people anywhere to tap into the source without the use of powerlines. This legendary sustainable energy system would have created an abundance of natural energy. He was financed by J.P.Morgan and the banker realized that with this invention went the ability to charge for electricity due to the proposed available abundance. He could only sell a once off for the unit to capture the power.

Really interesting story and if you don't know it you should research it but the point is then and many other times in our recent history free energy has been discovered and quashed by Oil and Gas companies to ensure continued profit.

Instead we use coal and gas and other non-renewable, unabundant resources to ensure scarcity in our energy market.

This has led to the near destruction of our beautiful precious planet all for greed and power and can no longer be allowed to continue.

In the Evolution this act would be against the core principles and can never and would never happen.

The Evolution must supply all the power use for its members and has no profit need. It would be only common sense that if a power supply could be set up such as a wave generator or wind generator that once in place, would supply power with no more resource cuts down on 'costs' for the society. The Evolution intends to push the boundary in these hidden renewable technologies in order to create more sustainability with less impact to its members or the environment.

WHAT'S IN THE HEART, NOT IN THE POCKET

In our world today we are taught to aspire wealth. Although many are waking up, through the whole nature of the way our system is set up we are taught to admire those that are wealthy. In our advertising and our movies how luxurious and grand and great it is to be wealthy. We are taught that to be successful in life is to attain material possession and that a person who has less is less, although once again people are beginning to awaken to how wrong this is, it's been a part of our society for a long time and still our mainstream promotes this school of thought.

A person attains social rank and esteem through the amount of money and wealth they control. This can lead to even the most crooked, bigoted and even racist people becoming role models and even people of great social position and responsibility and is clearly unhealthy for our society.

Due to issues relating to wealth and social inequality many great people who choose to live with less attachment to physical possession are not seen or heard in the light they should be.

In the Evolution everybody is on an even footing with no lifestyle differences through wealth and possession. The only thing that will make a person gain social esteem is the deeds they do for others. If a person works hard to increase the environment around him for society people will naturally respect that person.

People naturally aspire to be respected by their peers. Humans are a social creature in most cases and wish for social acceptance. In the Evolution people will naturally aspire to do things, great things for their society to achieve that social acceptance and position. And those that do will be the ones to achieve it.

In the Evolution volunteers who have dedicated their lives towards helping society and the people move forward will be the people who attain social ranking and position. People who are socially minded and motivated and impassioned to do the best for the world around them will be those that find themselves in positions of respect and authority within our industry and government helping to ensure honesty and integrity within those important positions.

In a world without money what matters is what's in a person's heart not what's in their pocket.

HEMP, THE 'OVER' ABUNDANT RESOURCE

In the early parts of the 20th century Henry T. Ford built one of his very first cars almost entirely out of hemp plastic.

Hemp is a resource that has been deliberately hidden away from humanity in a manner that has led almost to the destruction of our planet. It can make plastic, diesel, material, hempcrete (like concrete but lighter and stronger) and hemp board (like wood but lighter and stronger). It can make medicine and many other products and is one of the most easily renewable resources on the planet.

For a millennia hemp was amongst the primary crops we grew and resources we have used, but over the last century a heated debate on hemp has raged. Why? As stated, earlier hemp is one of the most renewable resources on the planet and can be grown to abundance with ease. With abundance comes a lack of profit.

During the 1930's a campaign was launched called 'the reefer madness campaign' where the strain of hemp called marijuana was depicted as a psychotic drug that caused madness on its users.

Supposedly the campaign was launched by a group of powerful petrochemical companies. Recently the discovery of Oil and Fuel had led to the discovery of plastic and its ability to be moulded into nearly anything and used to make a huge range of products. Only one thing was in the way of Billions of dollars profit. As well as oil, plastic and bio diesel could be created from Hemp oil, and as such, plastic and fuel would be almost worthless due to its available abundance through hemp. It was in the best interest of this group of very rich, very greedy, very powerful companies to remove the competition and remove the greatest resource on the planet.

Hemp can be completely farmed by machinery and robotics it can be harvested by robotic harvesters and refined in automated refineries. From there it can be used in 3d printers and printed into nearly anything you could imagine. Used along with a recycling setup for metal and glass and their automation this would mean that one or two people making sure that the robotics and automated machinery keep working can quite literally print out almost any amount of anything. Houses, vehicles, machinery, tools and toys a whole world full at the touch of a button.

In the Evolution hemp technology will be used and advanced to the very height of its ability allowing it to supply its members easily and renewably with nearly anything.

WORK IN THE EVOLUTION, PRODUCTIVITY, NOT PROFIT

In our society so many man hours are wasted on meaningless tasks. From the supervisor watching the supervisor through to the factory hand we waste precious productivity. So many unproductive jobs are there all because of the economy. Salespeople, bankers, insurers, and accountants only purpose is to make money move around but that isn't near the worst of it. How many factory workers out there in third world countries are doing jobs that could be easily done by robots to build things that are designed to break and be thrown away?

Statistics show that even before taking into consideration what robots could do, and they can do a lot that we don't let them, at least 60% of human work is wasted on unproductive jobs done only to make money move. This means over society if you work 50 hours per week on average (and many do) for 30 hours a week you might as well be standing on your head for how much it actually does for humanity and societies production.

By the time you have worked for ten years at most you have done all the work hours needed for you to have provided all you will ever use. Your work has been completed and the rest of the years you work are being stolen from you to ensure the movement of money. Our governments are continuously looking for ways to make jobs to keep down the unemployment rate to ensure people have money. This results in many useless positions being created with no more intent than to ensure we are all always working. As a society we work to make money and profit and not to supply ourselves with food and housing etc. We have trapped ourselves into financial slavery spending years of our lives being forced into work to ensure an imaginary economy can stay afloat. Instead of living in freedom and comfort we hold ourselves in self-inflicted stress and pressure to make sure the bills are paid. This is so wrong for our society and holds us back in so many ways that the realization that it is so needless should affect us all to our very core.

Sadly, Robotics are also slowed down in their advancement and even looked at in fear by our society because with more robotics means less jobs to make money.

“We should be celebrating the coming of our robotic achievements as it has actually freed us from the need to do manual labour.” Colin Turner, Free World Charter

In the Evolution work isn't done to make money move around, it's done to ensure productivity and supply are kept up. This means we don't waste precious hours of people's lives doing meaningless jobs, it also means we aren't scared of robotics as it sets the members free from mundane tasks.

Still there will always be an amount of work that has to be done in order to fulfil the needs of the society but in The Evolution it is in the mandate to provide the best quality of life for its members and slavery doesn't have any place in any form. In the Evolution work is done for production or for passion, not profit.

At first The Evolution will either employ people out of profit from its businesses or utilise new members to fulfil work needs. When a new member starts the journey of becoming a member, they must do an amount of work before attaining membership this will be the work hours required to fulfil production needs.

Eventually this system will be reworked but the basic principle is that the amount of man hour's productivity required for the society to sustain itself and the social projects it is working on, is calculated and averaged out. This will include all the service needs of the society such as repair personnel and medical and emergency staff. Once all the infrastructure is in place for the mundane unnecessary work to be completed by automation and we start to work with true abundance technology away from the profit mentality the amount of required hours will be surprisingly low in order to ensure our society's needs. These hours will be averaged out to calculate the average hours each new member needs to complete in order to achieve the society's needs. This along with the 'volunteer army' as explained elsewhere will ensure our society has all it needs to live in abundance and comfort.

In the future as a new member or a young person starts the journey towards membership, they must do the amount of hour's work that will be required to cover their lifetime's productivity needs. This would work out to maybe 5-8 year's work as an estimate. They would do these years doing the tasks required by the society, that were not being fulfilled by volunteer workers, in order to ensure all productivity was covered.

People naturally find it mentally much easier to motivate themselves to work when they see an end to the task and a reward. It is very hard on some one's sense of self and well-being when they are trapped in a situation of mundane work with no end in sight. When a person knows that they only have to do a limited and known amount of work to complete before being released to appreciate the true rewards of their work for the rest of their lives completing the appointed task becomes much easier.

After they had finished the hours required for their needs a person is then free to do as they please. For most people though, as explained elsewhere, this is only the beginning of their production journey. A cook that loves to cook for people doesn't just stop loving cooking for people when they no longer get paid or need to work for production. A nurse that loves helping people doesn't just stop wanting to help people at the end of the years required for their production. But now when they work, they do it because they want to not because they need too. And their work is only done for love and passion, not profit.

THE RETURN OF CRAFT WORKS OF ART

Once a member has finished the required work for their production needs, they are free for the rest of their lives. Free to enjoy travel and adventure as they see fit, to live wherever The Evolution is and to experience everything The Evolution has to offer. But that's not where work ends.

People love doing things. After seeing so many places and doing so many wonderful things the average person will find themselves content around their family in a nice spot. But people get bored. A carpenter loves working with wood it's their passion, now they have access to all the raw materials they want, and all the best of equipment is just down at the workshop nearby. They have no production need, that's already done. They aren't there because they need to make a profit or a living. They are there because they want to be there. They can now take their time and create. They can take 15 years to build a table if they want and make it the most incredible piece of woodwork ever conceived.

Through the modern money profit mentality, we have lost the craft work of old times. We no longer make the beautiful pieces we see in antique shops or on tv, there isn't any profit in them so we have lost the art. The Evolution will naturally usher in a new era of the long-lost craft artisan.

TRANSPORT

In today's world the technology we use to move around both ourselves and our goods is well outdated. In the last century we have destroyed massive areas in order to create our superhighways and our vehicles have spewed out carbon monoxide into our air to the point of suffocation. We now have hundreds of thousands of old outdated and dangerous vehicles moving around our roads. Everyday hundreds of people and countless animals are killed when the technology has existed for a long time to make a change but hasn't and can't be implemented in our current financial system as to do so would destroy the financial viability of many massive industries and corporations. The technology we use for transport should never have been pushed in the direction it has been, as it so unnecessarily destructive.

People

We are taught as a society that we all need our own car. That the more cars we have the better off we are. It's a status symbol to have your own vehicle and advertising has played on our ego for a long time to sell us a car so someone can make a profit. In western society people will even look down on a person without a vehicle as unsuccessful or unworthy. The truth is that is in the best interest of the powerful owners of huge petrochemical corporations and automotive companies for us to buy and own as many cars as they can get us too, and to use them and the fuel they use as much as they can make us as well. And if those cars break or crash it's once again in their best interest.

Public transport is inadequate and unavailable to most only touching a fraction of our transport network. Buses and trains are built and run on the strictest of budgets to ensure whatever profit they can achieve and are generally left in a state of disrepair and disgust. Most people avoid public transport when they can.

Many of us spend hours of our lives surrounded by toxic fumes in among hundreds and thousands of commuters, caught day after day in massively congested traffic jams. Stress and danger becoming a common occurrence in our everyday lives. Horrendous accidents, road rage and impatience create anger and hurt between complete strangers and all so unnecessary.

For many years there have been alternate technologies available that could change much of the way we transport ourselves around. There have been many alternate energy sources hidden away that could have changed our resource consumption but as well as this there have been many incredible inventions that could make our transport quicker, safer and more environmentally friendly but for reasons of money and control have not been implemented. The latest high value cars can even drive themselves with camera assist and G.P.S. technology but this is only the tip of the ice burg of what we can do with transport when we take away the profit mentality and start to look at more important values.

During the 1980s we hear of the story of Stann Meyer. He is known for building the first hydrogen engine for a car, this allowed his car to run on water. He was supposedly murdered by powerful groups in the petrochemical industry in order to secure their fortunes and our petrol consumption. Whether or there was a conspiracy behind his murder is a discussion for other places but the point to be made is that it was in the best interest of these petrochemical companies to ensure that this technology was hidden.

Another story comes from the second world war. During periods of extreme fuel shortages English vehicle owners were supposedly given a device called a fuel vaporiser that made fuel efficiency raise dramatically in cars. These devices were supposedly called back after the war. Again whether there was a conspiracy involving these units is a for another place the point being that it is in the best interest of petrochemical companies to hide this technology if it is available as to allow it to become something widespread in society would massively diminish the ability to make money from petrol due to its increased abundance.

We all want to be able to get around quickly, easily, comfortably and sometimes privately. We want to be able to get from A to B reliably, when we want to.

Although it will take time for it to grow to the point where infrastructure is available for mass transit, as it grows The Evolution must supply all the transport requirements for its members. Not only the vehicles and systems themselves but the required resources for running the equipment itself. In the Evolution manifesto and due the concepts, The Evolution runs on this equipment must be of the highest quality, comfort and safety available as well as environmentally sustainable and causing as little damage as possible. It must utilize as little non-renewable resource as that will always be in The Evolution best interest. It must be abundantly available in a manner that enhances lifestyle experience.

As The Evolution grows it will purchase transport companies such as coaches and airlines but will need to change the way it manages transport with new technology as the infrastructure and resources become available in order to fulfil its obligations to society members.

There are many incredible technologies that have been available or are coming available that could achieve the requirements of The Evolution society and as infrastructure is built many questions about the best ways to proceed will arise.

The writer envisions in The Evolution that walking and bicycles will become much more commonly utilized, being promoted by The Evolution for many reasons, health environmental and resource protection but as well as this a system of small electric cars similar to golf carts will supply most of the movement around a local areas. For longer travel there will be both a series of monorails as well as drone like, quad propeller self-guided flying machines. For international travel the technology in maglev trains could be used for safe, reliable, cheap, comfortable and fast travel from one side of the world to the next.

How this will eventuate in reality is a question for engineers and scientists and the people, but the point is that travel will change greatly in The Evolution in ways that will be safer, cleaner, faster, more comfortable and easier than anything we have so far known in our history.

Goods

In the financial system and especially a capitalist system the movement of goods is a major contributing factor to the movement and making of money. The movement of goods is what makes money work. In the area that an item is produced it is abundant and worth little the further you move that item away from its abundance the more it is worth and the more profit it creates.

I.e. In a region they grow a rare variety of something, let's say some fruit. In this region the fruit is prolific on trees all around, you can even pick them on the side of the road or in household gardens. You can't sell the fruit in its home region for very much at all due to its abundance. In other regions the fruit doesn't grow and won't grow, but people still want it and now will have to spend resources and time on travelling to the region they grow in to get them from the tree or have them delivered to them and pay the costs involved to get them transported. The more resources used and the more hands that it goes through the more profit must be generated in the process. In transport the main costs are fuel, man hours and vehicle repairs. The further they go the more cost involved. Profit on top is calculated in a basic way of saying as a percentage above the costs. In the purchasing region the price of the good is set from the perceived value of the goods, the transport and the profit.

Although this is a very simple way of looking at how transport costs effect profit margins, a whole book could and probably has been written on the subject, the intent is to point out the underlying encouragement and promotion from within the money system to regionalise production and transport goods as far as possible. By producing things in particular regions increases the scarcity in regions not producing those items and the further you take the good from where it is produced more profit potential is created.

This has had some very drastic consequences to the way our resource production is managed in our current system. Goods are transported hundreds even thousands of miles meaninglessly in order to create more profit potential. From initial resource harvesting to production to packaging and finally retail goods get moved back and forth with no more intent than to create profit.

This movement of goods waists an incredible amount of precious non-renewable resources and causes an unacceptable amount of environmental harm to our world when it is done with no production value other than to make money move and to support a profit mentality.

The Evolution must supply any resources it needs to move goods around to its members. It is the best interest of The Evolution to minimalize the amount of resources required in the supply of its members and so it is in its best interest to produce things as closely to where they are needed and would never move goods around unnecessarily.

PRODUCTION

In our current financial system, the way we set up production is designed to maximise profit not production. We use old environmentally harmful equipment thrown together in dirty toxic regions. We build hundreds of facilities to do production where one large facility could house and complete all these facilities production and do multiple tasks at once. We create massive environmental destruction in our production and all in order to ensure individual business interests and the movement of money.

Production facilities are often placed miles away from where raw resources are gathered. Vehicles transport goods hundreds of miles from one place to the next using fossil fuels and creating huge amounts of carbon monoxide and more.

We produce so many useless items with the only true purpose to move money and be thrown away, and worst of all we commonly use non-renewable rare resources where easily attainable sustainable substitutes are available in order to ensure scarcity and profit.

In the Evolution with the change away from the profit mentality comes a major change in why and how we produce things. It is in the best interest of the Evolution and part of the guiding principles to use the most abundantly available renewable and environmentally sustainable resources.

Hemp products can only be seen as among the most viable for many of The Evolution society needs being as abundant and environmentally friendly as it has been shown to be and will be used in many of the things The Evolution uses. Recycling will also be a very important part of Evolution production as the less raw materials it needs to supply at the base level the less demand on the corp. Materials that are unrenowable yet necessary like metals will be treated with much more respect in Evolution and used as sparingly as possible in technology used. As the Evolution grows, with recycling of old redundant equipment and infrastructure as a major practice and the use of abundant technology and resources Evolution production will have environmentally friendly renewable resources available for its production well into the future.

It will always be in the best interest of Evolution to use the very best and most reliable of available technology for production as it will have to replace it much less frequently. It is in the best interest of Evolution to ensure that production of goods is as local as possible to cut down on transport resource use. It is a guiding principle to provide the very best quality of life available for the members and also to have as little negative environmental impact as possible so only the cleanest available technology will be used in production and all structures in Evolution and are built to be as aesthetically pleasing as possible and to fit into the surrounds. Evolution production facilities will be state of the art environmentally friendly and beautiful operations allowing local and easy access to almost anything a member could need or want all built or created in a sustainable manner.

As with many of the Evolution principles and ideas how this will evolve will be up to others, in this case mainly engineers. As the Evolution grows experienced people will come forth with the knowledges to be able to achieve what will be required for Evolution to complete its production needs within its guidelines and principles. But by using those principles our society's production will move forward in technology and technique beyond even the industrial revolution. Like with all things in a system without money the only boundaries to what we can do are the raw materials available, and our knowledge and willpower to create.

DISTRIBUTION

The details of how distribution and production in the Evolution will work will be a work in progress for some time. How community will evolve, and change is something that can only be theorised on until time and events pass allowing the questions that arise to be answered.

In the beginning of the journey towards becoming a true resource based economy the Evolution will distribute goods through retail stores and shop fronts of all kinds designed to act in a manner to both provide necessary goods to society members as well as to sell wears to those still within the financial system but as Evolution grows and becomes self-sufficient the need to act in this retail fashion will become obsolete.

Evolution must supply all the goods the society members need in order to fulfil its obligations. It treats all people exactly even and must make things readily available for all. All production is done as localised as possible as explained elsewhere and with a minimum of transport.

With today's computer abilities creating a system to manage an even distribution of goods into necessary areas will be easy to create. Using a computer system will help to ensure the unbiased distribution of available resources. Using abundance technology and renewable resource most items will be abundantly available in all regions but there will still be a need to move certain resources and items from area to area and to ensure fair distribution of these goods. These rarer goods will be managed by computer to be available at where they are needed for even production or distribution.

When it comes to final level distribution the most effective and efficient way that the Evolution can achieve this with non-perishable items is to have areas designated for storage and distribution. Almost like warehouses these areas would be set up as close to local production facilities as possible and would allow for the distribution of goods from local areas as well as goods from further afield. They would be as automated as possible and staffed by new society members doing their required production hours. They would be connected to transport networks for transported goods. A society member could go to these warehouses and collect any needed item.

As with all things in the Evolution these items are not 'owned' in the commonly understood manner and it would be the responsibility of members to return these items if viable for recycling or reuse.

It is important to remember here that in the Evolution the reason we make and use things changes dramatically. No longer design things to break or be used and thrown away. No longer do we collect things for status symbols. We are no longer surrounded by advertising encouraging us to buy this useless thing or that. We live in homes that have been set up with everything we could need in our day to day lives that are serviced replacing or repairing any damaged or dead equipment. We have access to areas set up with entertainment facilities and workshops all serviced to the highest level. The number of items that the Evolution society actually needs to or desires to be able to collect as individuals reduces dramatically and so too does our overall need to produce.

QUALITY ORGANIC FOOD

Food and the way we eat are greatly affected by the financial system with many detrimental effects for our health, our environment, our community, our sense of wellbeing, our ability to learn and much more. Food is among the most precious of resources and its quality and availability is a major contributing factor to the quality of life led by individuals within a society.

In our world today the quality of food that is consumed by the average person is very poor. Although we have great diversity in the foods, we have available a great deal of the food we consume is full of chemical preserves, colouring, and flavouring.

Due to ease in the rush of day to day life in the finance system and the bombardment of advertising we choose to eat from huge commercial chains that feed us food with the sole intent to make money and as a result serve very substandard produce at best.

We often eat on our own, cooking meals as quickly and easy as possible when we would much rather eat in a relaxed atmosphere with friends and family, eating food cooked well by someone with passion. The main reason we don't is due to the time and financial restrictions inflicted upon us by living within a financial system.

We grow huge monocultures, directly and indirectly controlled by massive corporations, using massive quantities of chemical fertilizers and causing huge amounts of environmental damage in the process.

In the pursuit of the control of abundance some large corporations have gone as far as to create genetically modified seeds. Although genetically modified seed stock can produce apparently superior quantities and qualities of food this process inevitably stops the produce to reproduce. This will result in seed stocks being able to be closely monitored and controlled. Where we are potentially headed with this technology in our society has some EXTREMELY concerning possibility's and cannot be allowed to happen for humanities true freedom and human rights.

Even the available abundance of food that comes from being able to grow our own garden, an act that should be well within any persons rights, is now being threatened with laws prohibiting the growth of private vegetable gardens being forced into place in some states in America and elsewhere.

In the Evolution what we eat and the way we eat and the way we produce food will be very different to the way we do now. Due to Evolution's need to supply the very best quality in life for its members, the very best food possible will be made readily and easily available and how we treat the environment in our production of food can also only be done in environmentally sustainable and beautiful manner.

Using organic permaculture principles, abundance production technology, new member's production hours and the many dedicated volunteers that will come from people who love to garden Evolution gardens will be a beautiful part of the society spreading incredible food, fruit, vegetables and medicines all around member's homes and suppling the food needs of the members with beautiful organic produce.

Members will have access to many places to eat where they can gather with family and friends in relaxed comfortable environments and enjoy well cooked and prepared meals whenever they are hungry. They will also have the option to have meals delivered to their homes or to take fresh produce home daily to be home cooked if they wish as well.

Eating in large groups of family and community will naturally be a part of the evolution of society and community within the Evolution and will help in breaking down much of the separations within families and even overall society.

Having access to highly nourishing well-prepared organic produce and meals in abundance will energize and uplift people and along with the many other changes in the society around them help to move people into a new age of consciousness.

BUILDING ARCHITECTURAL MASTERPIECES

In our past we have gone through periods of time where our everyday architecture and building practices were in many ways far better than what we use today. At the time the push for profit was less intense than in today's capitalist system and even though our technology has advanced through the last century in huge leaps we rarely use our technology at its highest level due to financial considerations. In a financial system due to the push for the need of profit the average building is built as cheaply as possible. By the time the that building has been in place for 50 years it will already be ready for destruction and rebuilding as it will be falling apart due to its budgeted construction technique and the materials used.

As is common practice in a financial system although we have many renewable alternate techniques and resources available. We rarely use them due to the need to create scarcity in order to create profit.

Our technology has advanced so far that we can now print out almost any structure using hempcrete and 3d printing. This technology could be advancing the way we build in ways almost unfathomable, but the money required for its development won't be put forward as with that ability comes the removal of scarcity in our building and housing needs and the removal of some ones profit. Imagine all the builders that it would put out of work if the technology to print houses in almost any design was fully developed and released.

In Evolution the motivations about how and why we build a structure change dramatically. Evolution must provide all the materials needed in building a building and it also needs to replace any buildings that need replacing. It follows Evolution principles that it be built with the very best of renewable materials and be built to have harmony within its surrounding in both aesthetics and its environmental impact.

In Evolution we no longer have fear of our robotic and technological abilities taking away from the NEED to do work and will advance these technologies to the best of our abilities eventually allowing our architects and builders to achieve things at ease beyond the dreams of today's standards with much less man power.

The world that will eventually arise within the Evolution society will be filled with architectural marvels that will be beautiful in harmony with nature and their surrounds and will stand for hundreds of years.

HOUSING

The Evolution must supply all the housing needs for its society members. These homes will be built following the Evolution principles and will be built using only the very best of techniques and technology available. Although greatly diverse in their design and function to cater for as much individuality as possible the structures will be built with aesthetic intent and to fit in with the environment around them.

People are naturally diverse. In the way we dress, the things we like to do, and in the way we live, we all have our unique tastes and appreciations. In the Evolution we see that diversity is the pathway to unique thought and will always be promoted and cultured. That diversity will be displayed in the houses we build in the Evolution. Some people like to live in apartments, some in suburbia, and others within the forest, some people want a home filled with technological wonders and others wish for nothing more than a bed in the trees, and all will be catered for.

On the most, people simply want an easy comfortable home. A place where they can relax and rest and prepare for the next adventure.

Although the journey towards discovering the right balances of design and functionality will be a long journey and will take time to find, we envision that most dwellings will be simple and beautiful. Set up with all the best in technology to make life comfortable and enjoyable, modern luxury items will be commonplace such as spas or entertainment systems.

In our current world we build massive mansions filled with dozens of rooms and huge areas of land around them. Often these homes are owned by a wealthy person or couple who live there on their own with many rooms never used. We have huge areas of massive buildings utilizing huge amounts of resources and getting used by a small handful of people. At the same time, we have huge populations living in the dirt, with the only resource being used, some iron for shanties. When looked at with a non-profit mentality, with an eye for society and not self, this is beyond backwards, it's a shame on our culture. This mentality must change for the best of our society our species and our world.

In the Evolution homes are beautiful, functional, and comfortable. They are built to sustain the highest level of living quality and will be well beyond most of our current standards for a home. They will be built with the number of occupants intended in mind and not filled with empty rooms that never get used. They will be built in a sort of minimalist approach only containing what is needed.

It is important to note here that how we live in the Evolution homes will change a great deal from how we do today. The Evolution neighbourhood is VERY different to our current neighbourhoods. They are filled with gardens and art and set out with entertainment spaces, places to eat similar to restaurants, workshops and studios filled with technology, sporting areas and gyms and much more, and all there for members to access at any time, with no money. Many of the activities we commonly do in our homes will no longer be a part of our home lives as they are today.

Having access to well cooked meals that can be shared with family and friends, in environments filled with entertainment and enjoyment will make eating in community a much larger part of our day to day. Having access to state-of-the-art recreation and sporting facilities will encourage social gatherings and make group activities much more common. Having access to travel all around the world will open the way for extended journeys. Overall, this will mean people on average, will spend very little time in their dwelling using it mainly to sleep and wash and have personal time, spending most time with family and friends in community surrounds.

CRIME AND THE END OF THE WAR ON DRUGS

In a world without money, a world of true economic equality, many of the crimes that occur today would never happen. Most crimes happen due to the frustration that comes from being unable to achieve something because of economic situation. When a person is unable to feed themselves or their family regardless of the laws in place, they will do what needs to be done to achieve that end. To achieve freedom from the economic slavery we find ourselves in, people will sometimes do terrible things.

In Evolution crimes involving theft disappear all but entirely, no more muggings for the cash in some ones wallet, no more break and entry to gain goods that everyone has access to, and no more violent armed robberies at banks or shops that no longer exist. These types of crimes cease to exist as the inequality and scarcity no longer exists that create them.

In our current system there are many useless laws that would no longer be applicable with the way our lives will change as the Evolution grows.

In our current system it is in the best interest of the governments to create laws that are designed to create revenue. A government can make significant financial reward out of mundane laws such as minor traffic infringements.

Using financial measures such as fines as the punishment of crimes results in an uneven distribution of so-called justice when a rich person pays the same as a poor person. Corporations and the superrich do things that are completely immoral and against the law knowing that if they are caught it means very little for them to pay the fine while a pensioner that makes a small harmless blunder can be put into deep financial stress. This is clearly a system that is inadequate, uneven and wrong.

For decades the war on drugs has ragged. Thousands of people's lives have been destroyed along with so many unnecessary and immoral deaths, and our prisons swell with people that have never hurt anyone but themselves. Our police have been militarised and at times the war rages out on the streets. There is still, after so much wrong, hard drugs in our communities.

Billions of dollars of revenue in the form of fines have been raised by our governments in the process.

There are many questions about legal structure and punishment in the Evolution that cannot be answered here, in truth those are questions for the people and the world and will be among questions covered at the New Earth festival, but for the sake of this book a few fundamental differences between our current system and the Evolution should be covered.

In the Evolution useless revenue raising laws will disappear as there is no need to raise revenue and the avenue of punishment is gone. In the Evolution the only laws should be based around harm to others and harm to the environment. It is in the mandate of the Evolution to supply the best quality of life possible for its members. Actions of self-harm should be treated with education and help from health professionals not punishment as this is the best option for both the individual and the society. In the end, a healed healthy prosperous person is much better for society than an angry incarcerated one. The war on drugs will end.

With the removal of scarcity and inequality, with a high level of education, with the lessening of stress from getting off the rat wheel and with a culture of help not punishment crime will reduce within the Evolution society dramatically.

The writer envisions that the crimes that remain in Evolution, crimes of passion or anger generally will be punished in a completely different fashion as money no longer exists. As a society member you have the rights of access to everything. With wrongdoing comes the loss of those rights and the ability to utilize available services.

i.e. If someone was to get drunk at a social area and start a fight, they might lose access to that area and to the ability to attain alcohol for a period of time.

Punishment will be even for all, in all cases from minor to serious wrongdoing, with no differences in economic situation to create an uneven field in our justice system.

Policing will also change dramatically with the lessening of crime and the end of the drug war. No more will we have highly armed militarised police roaming our neighbourhoods killing innocents accidentally. In Evolution community minded volunteers will be a major part of the policing force. Similar to the sheriffs of times past, they will be elected members of the community and chosen due to their level of trust. The changes that come with the Evolution will naturally usher in a new era of respect for those given that difficult, dangerous and important role in our society.

EMERGENCY SERVICES

Emergency services are one of the most important factors contributing to a first-class modern society. The ability to have help in an emergency is vital to a feeling of security within our day to day lives. In our current financial system emergency services like most social services are considered a drain on common resources. In a money system they rely upon tax revenue to operate. Even though they are literally life and death systems, emergency services are often underfunded and utilizing old outdated technology. With the removal of a profit mentality, like many things this changes dramatically.

In Evolution, once it has achieved a point of self-sustainability the only thing that becomes a factor in what these services are supplied is a matter of raw resources not money, and manpower. Using abundance technology, practices and resources the emergency services in Evolution society will be continuously updated with the very best of technology available for their service.

Manned and operated by the same principles as all Evolution services, emergency services will be as automated as possible but will also be operated by both new members and volunteers. Dedicated volunteers will lead these organizations and will help to guide them to be the best the world has ever seen.

KEEPING US HEALTHY NOT MAKING US WELL

The world we live in today is backwards in the way it deals with many situations as this book outlines but one of what we consider the most inhumane, ridiculously inadequate and backwards parts of our current system is within our medicine and health. In our current system a doctor or medical practitioner trades the ability to make you well. You go to a doctor when you are ill and pay them to make you better. This means, as explained earlier in 'The end of trade', that it is in the best interest of the medical industry for you to be sick, as that is where they make money. In a world of abundant health, a medical practitioner's ability to make a living is greatly lessened. The implications of this are very dangerous for our society to say the very least.

It is widely known and understood that there are many natural remedies within our world. There are herbs and extracts of many kinds able to cure many illnesses, and have been used to do so for many eons, but we as a society today hardly ever use these remedies any more, instead we use chemically reproduced synthetic varieties of the same base ingredients from massive pharmaceutical companies that we get charged huge amounts for. If herb and extract use was commonly encouraged by our society and we all had these herbs growing in abundance in our home regions, these pharmaceutical companies could no longer make the massive profits that they do.

For many years it has been whispered that there are many very common cures for cancer. There is a very large community of people now that truly believe that they have cured themselves from this very foul disease through the use alternate techniques and medicine such as cannabis oil extracts. It is believed by these people that these cures have been deliberately held away from the mainstream population in order to protect the many billion-dollar industry that has been created by the cancer epidemic.

We don't wish to enter the debate of whether or not there is a conspiracy within these big multi-national corporations in order to suppress health or cures of foul disease, the truth of this is for others to explore but we wish to point out the fact that in our current system it is in the best interest of these corporations to do so. That in order for their shareholders to continue to live the lifestyle they lead and to make the dividends they do they would NEED to suppress such a cure. They are also much better off financially to encourage us to not use and grow our own medicine as that effects the scarcity of their product. It is also in their best interest to suppress these knowledges as they come available in order to secure their industries financial position.

It's very sad but our current financial system encourages our health practitioners to make and keep us unwell.

Health and medicine are a human right. For us to have people in our society dying needlessly of simply cured ailments when the cures and antidotes are so easily readily available and abundant is wrong and evil. That a person can die of ailments such as infection in a modern society simply because of the fiction of money and economic depravity is a shame on our society and MUST change.

In Evolution the way medicine and health works will naturally be turned around. Not only is it a part of the mandate to ensure the highest standard of living and hence health for its members but Evolution supplies all health services to its members without any money exchange, for free and so has to supply all the needs to make any unhealthy member well. It is in the natural best interest of Evolution 'financially' to keep its members well. The more illness within the society the more resources and production it will need to use to combat that illness. This will mean that it will be in the best interest of the system to promote health in every aspect to ensure the lowest level of illness.

In Evolution health services of all kinds will be abundant and easily accessed by everyone. From dentistry to mental health services and medical institutes all will be available and ready to help with whatever ailment needs healing.

Herbal medicines and natural remedies will be explored and experimented with to the greatest of depth. With the profit mentality taken out of the medical industry it will be in the best interest of Evolution to find and promote the most abundant, easy and best cures available as that cuts down on its own need to supply additional services.

In Evolution health, both of body and mind, will be encouraged in every aspect of member's lives. The food will be of the highest standard, the schooling and community support like nothing we have ever experienced in our world today. With the lessening of stress that will come from no longer having to make money move around and the new freedom that will come to people to explore and enjoy their own lives along with state of the art health services available and abundant to the members of Evolution society, many of the health issues we face today will disappear and become a thing of the past.

NO MORE NURSING HOMES, RESPECT OUR ELDERS

Throughout our history in traditional culture the elders of our families and our communities were respected for the wisdom they had from the long lives they had led, and respected they should be, for they help us learn and grow without having to make the same mistakes they did, and much more, they gave us life.

In our society today the treatment of our elders is appalling even disgraceful. Most of our parents and grandparents, our aunts and our uncles, even OURSELVES, especially if low on money, are destined to one day sit among a group of strangers watching tv and getting feed mush while we wait to die remembering our family and our youth's.

Meanwhile our youth are off working on the unending treadmill unable to spend more than a few hours here and there with their elder family members due to the time restraints of making the money go round.

In Evolution elders are finally given back the respect they deserve. Having been helped to stay healthy in the first place is a good start rather than making money on our illness, but now as a person gets older their sons and daughters nieces and nephews and even their grandchildren will be finished their life productions work and will have all the time in the world to be around them.

In the abundance of Evolution communities, among the luxury and beauty and comfort they provide, the elderly will have access to great food, as with everyone, community and loved ones around them and access to anything they need. They will have access to state-of-the-art aged care equipment to help any special needs and even access to nurses if they need. They will comfortably move through the last years of their life with access to any health facilities or any treatment they require, as explained elsewhere medicine in a world with no money is very different, and when its time they will pass on, among their family and friends respected and loved as they always should have been.

SCHOOLING, THE FUTURE OF SOCIETY

In our society today, the level of education overall is dropping. People are getting less education and tuition to the point that overall; our society is getting dumber. For a culturally advanced society this is a serious issue that needs to be combated immediately. Our children are the future of our society and our species and cultivating their minds towards greatness is the most important thing we can as a society do for our future.

In today's profit mentality system, education is looked at as a drain of resource. We fund our schools through our taxes and to give more tax would impede on our own lifestyles further and drain our own personal resources. Our government's budget our schools strictly and the public-school system has continuous money flow issues ensuring second rate equipment, textbooks and facilities and a very small paycheck for our teachers. Even in private schools although the level of equipment etc. is higher, it's still strictly budgeted on, to ensure the required/desired profit from the enterprise. We teach only a very strict curriculum and allow for a very narrow field for the differences in the way children learn.

In today's money system, due to many reasons, a big one being the need to have children minded while we work, we are forced as children to go to school. Humans naturally hate to be forced to do anything and rebel against that pressure. As children we are naturally curious and love to learn and given the right environment, filled with excitement and fun as well as study, and the ability to learn and study in a way that helps all styles of learning, we will naturally seek tuition on the subjects that interest us.

In today's society our number one resource, where we spend most of our community money, is war. In Evolution our number one resource, where we dedicate our resources most, is education.

Concepts of how education can and will work in Evolution is a subject that could fill another book and so we will only touch on a few concepts and fundamentals of what we see education could be.

In Evolution due the core concepts, money is no longer part of the equation with education. All education facilities will be equipped with the latest and best technology available and will be housed in surroundings designed to encourage to get the best from the students. There will be the availability to be taught and learn in many different ways, with a huge range of subjects at offer. Most of the educators and teachers will be volunteers that have finished their production hours and now have dedicated this portion of their lives to passing the knowledge on that they have attained to future generations.

In the Evolution we are no longer forced to do education but rather encouraged to. As a child comes to an age ready for education, the child and their parents will know that the amount of units study and the different units studied during the schooling years will determine what positions they will be eligible for when it comes time for them to do the years of work required for their life production needs.

i.e. a student who wishes to help people in health latter 'when they grow up' will know that if they study hard and cover the right series of subjects they will have the opportunity to work through their production requirements in a hospital or a laboratory and hence do their production hours continuing to learn and gain experience in the field they aspire to.

A lazy student will know that the choices in front of them when it comes time to do their required work hours, will be much more limited and may result in them having to settle with something they would rather not be doing as much.

Education in the Evolution will be fun and exciting and very different to education in today's profit mentality world and will be designed to encourage people to learn and open their minds to the greatest of their potential.

An educated people are a happy prosperous people. Education is paramount in ensuring the highest standards of lifestyle and as such is a core and primary requirement of Evolution's obligations to its members.

CULTURAL EXPLOSION, THE GOLDEN AGE

In our society today our lives are all so busy and so fast. This deadline or that appointment make us always on the move. Life keeps getting faster and faster. People are spending more and more time at work and the very little time they have for left for themselves is often spent in alcoholic stupor trying to make the most of our brief moments of freedom and take our minds away for just a moment from the constant deadlines. People have no time left to think about the deeper things in life, our philosophy, our music and spiritual advances have no time in this high paced profit mentality world.

In Evolution the pace of life will slow down dramatically. After a member has completed their required production the pressure of having to get up and go to work will be gone for ever. People will have all the time in the world free to do and think as they want. Now with all that free time and all the resources needed available some people will travel, some will create, some will volunteer and yet others will think.

Thinking and communicating about the deeper sides of life is something our current society has lost, delegating deep conversation and growth in our thought to an ominous cupboard. Deep thinkers, unconventional historians and scientist and spiritual explorers are looked at in the strangest way unless they conform to current mainstream thought. Any person that looks at anything that the mainstream explains as truth as anything but, are discredited and ridiculed.

This has been greatly harmful to the cultural growth of our society.

In Evolution the way we as a society live our day to day lives changes greatly. When we stop working to make money move around and only work for production and passion and can live life finally in true freedom away from the rat wheel it will greatly change us all deeply into our very core. When we all finally have the chance to stop. To be able to stand still and feel secure and have all those stress inflicting sub conscious pressures that are created from the profit mentality finally and permanently removed from our psyche it will be a feeling unlike any we have ever known. We will finally have the time to think about life, who we are and our place in the universe.

In Evolution philosophy and great thought will be encouraged to become a part of everyday life. As people find themselves free to do as they will, after completing their production needs, the opportunity will be given for people to return to study. Great schools will form for people who love to learn and love to teach. No longer designed to support a profit mentality and filled with students who are only there because they want to be, these schools will study every aspect of life. Science and philosophy, history and the spirit all will be deeply explored by passionate people hungry for knowledge.

Many schools of science in our current world are held back from moving forward as fast as possible not because of a lack of resources but by a lack of money or profitability. Many great advances are held back from mainstream society because they stop someone from making money. With the release of resources from the profit mentality, and the need to make money along with the great schools that will naturally form in Evolution society, science will leap forward in ways we can only imagine.

As well as philosophy and science the study of art and music will become much more a part of our everyday existence. In our current system only a highly successful artist or musician can sustain a high level of financial stability through their work. We commonly turn away from such pursuits, things we love doing, because there is no or little profit potential in it. Many would be great artists or musicians spend their life doing mundane money-making jobs instead of following their hearts and their art. When we are released from the need to make money, we will be left able to finally follow our passion, and if it is art then that is what should be done. Evolution society will be a place filled with wondrous art and music and will be beautiful beyond words.

Throughout our history the study of astrology was a major part of many original cultures. From many cultural perspectives the study of how the stars effected the human condition was considered among the most important pursuits of knowledge. In our current world society, our understanding of this very well documented science has been lost into the past and turned into superstition and little or no study has been done to increase our understanding. These types of study have little or no profit potential and so no place in our current system but in Evolution will be something that will naturally remerge.

The study of history has been placed in an interesting position in our current society. For reasons of control we have been held away from looking at what has come before. Our history is among the most important of knowledges and in a culturally advanced society should be looked at with importance and esteem and not disregarded as it almost is in our world today. In Evolution with the control intention finally disempowered in our society and the need to make profit from our studies gone, history will be given the place in study it deserves.

In our past we have as a society had times of great cultural expansion, times when our culture was propagated by the society around it in a way as to bring great leaps forward in many schools of thought. These periods of time were called golden eras and it has been a long, long time since we had a true one. When we have set ourselves free of the profit mentality the world will surely enter the next golden age.

MEMBERS OF THE SOCIETY

Becoming a member of the Evolution Society is not about privilege or position but rather about becoming part of a much larger ideal. It is about breaking away from ownership and control and wealth and moving towards true community. Becoming a member gives both rights and responsibilities.

Firstly, it gives you the right to a micro dwelling to live in rent free and to call home forever. It gives you the right to use all that Evolution provides free of charge and also attend any events or functions held by Evolution free of charge. You have the right to use Evolution equipment and services as they are available. You have the right to be treated in accordance with Evolution guiding principles and It also makes you eligible to be on the Evolution council by vote in.

You have the responsibility to let go of ownership, to be a part of the society in the heart, to do ones best to ensure the thriving growth and prosperity of the society and live by the ideals set out by the manifesto. You are Evolution and represent the co-op's ideals, what it is, and what it means for the world. Those who can let go and follow these ideals will ultimately be the ones voted in as council members for their contribution.

As Evolution grows and more services and resources become available to the society, we will have the opportunity to remodel our society from within, heading towards a true resource-based economy.

THREE STAGES TO TRANSITION

Stage 1. Market, Market, Market

For Evolution to achieve its first goals of stage 2. purchasing the first infrastructure or resource businesses many members must come together. The object of membership is to be affordable by even those in the lowest income brackets and will be set at $10per month, a very small amount, so in order to get to the financial position strong enough will take the coming together of as many people as we can get the word too that understand the need for drastic change. In order to achieve this the first stage of growing Evolution will revolve around a large marketing campaign.

At first starting with social media it will increase as more members become involved and more finances available and will stretch into all the forms of marketing available to us, including the printing and distribution of the Evolution Booklet. A large focus will be placed on workshops and concert/festival events to bring the environmentally aware as well as other focus groups together to explain and discuss the plan and direction and to generate excitement towards the project.

The Evolution will bring excitement at the possibilities of the future with it as it places on great events all focused on spreading awareness of the project. Through music and dance and performance we will spread the word of a great future coming all the while growing the numbers of the Evolution members. Although the outlay of these events will come from the initial membership fees they will well and truly pay for themselves through the membership and awareness that they will generate. Non-members will have to purchase tickets to these events, where a member has free access, as the membership cost and ticket cost will be similar it will make sense for people to become members giving access to future events.

It is intended that the Evolution be a platform for free speech and expression and help to bring our grievances forward to the public but through a peaceful festival approach instead of the front line confrontational approach of the past, all the while growing towards stage 2.

Stage 2. Purchasing Businesses

It may take 6mths it may take 5 years, all depending on how effective the word can be spread, but the time will come when enough members have come together to start stage two. Evolution estimates it will be between 8k-12k members that will be required to make a substantial enough income generated from membership to start into stage 2 proper. This may come a lot sooner as although membership is set for low income people we will be encouraging higher income people to be generous understanding the direction we are heading, and hope some will assist us moving forward. We also see the potential for Evolution to go viral and move forward much quicker with large numbers of members.

Once the required funds have been attained a professional business broker will start to form a list of potential businesses that we may as a group be interested in. They will range through several options, all still holding to the goals and ethics of the co-op but giving the members enough choice to help guide the direction. All of these moves of the coop will be managed through the online democracy. Each businesses income will combine with the ever-increasing membership funds increasing the buying power of the co-op. Professional managers will be hired to ensure the profitability of these businesses. Businesses will be reworked to fit with Evolution principles. Members will also receive discounts from any businesses under the Evolution umbrella. Essentially members at this point are being paid to be members through these discounts.

The main objective of this stage is not only to increase the financial power of Evolution but to also attain control of the required resource chains required for stage three. Over time Evolution will purchase industrial organic farming and a market chain for retail sales, renewable energy infrastructure including manufacture of renewable energy devices, Hemp production and manufacture for building supplies and plastics and paper and much more, Transportation and tourism, eventually higher technology manufacture supporting the renewable energy production allowing us to break into environmentally friendly development and production of robotics and industrial 3d printing.

Evolution also envisions at this point a demonstration hub will be purchased and built with the intent of showing where we are taking the coop in the future. It will include a small semi working model of the community style as well as tourism accommodation restaurant and festival ground and will serve as the new centre of the coop's operations.

Once the Evolution financial snowball has begun it will take on all we need to build our dreams. As people start to see the businesses appear members will flock to the banner for not only the immediate benefits but also the long term.

Stage 3, The Evolution

The objective of Evolution is to take our society into a new way of resource management, to end economic slavery, to open the door to renewable technology, to end the destruction of our beautiful world, and to ensure there is no first or second class citizen in any nation. The journey towards that dream seems so far too many, but to others it has become obvious that it is the natural transition of society, the problem has been how to make it happen. Many groups and organizations around the globe have done studies and made moves to this end without any solid movement towards it. The Evolution process is a new way at looking at an old problem. How long it takes us to reach stage three is an unknown, it could be 15years or it could be 5 it all depends on how fast we can get the word out of what the process is, what it means for us and the environment, and that we need everybody's help to make it happen.

Once we have attained all the necessary manufacturing and production to supply the needs we start to build. We purchase large stretches of land and use the now high-level technology and powerful resources available to create the world of our dreams. We use 3d printing of hemp concrete and robotic building devices to manufacture the luxury micro dwellings and gathering spaces and auditoriums, gardens and pools all working with nature in a beautiful architecturally designed wonderland. Evolution will uplift the environment around it bringing nature into our day to day world in ways we could not believe. All done sustainably to the best technology that is available.

More and more communities will be built spreading these new high tech, environmentally friendly and sustainable, beautiful 'towns' all around allowing more and more members to become free from economic enslavement and allowing the new abundance economy within to grow. Eventually expanding to even the poorest regions of the world.

The Evolution festivals will continue to travel for many years, bringing word of the new dawn approaching and about the golden age coming to humanity.

It may take a long time, or it may be shorter than even Evolution believe the important thing is that the steps to transition have begun.

THE NEW EARTH CONSTITUTION AND FESTIVAL

Evolution will be guided by a constitution based on human rights, ecological principles, and community abundance. The initial Evolution Core Guidelines have been written by Evolution founders and will guide the first movements of the Coop, but this is only meant to be temporary. No one group can decide how such a document should ideally be written and must, in truth be turned out for all the wisdom in the world to be a part of. It must ensure social and cultural understandings and security for all people and must be written to hold strength to ensure the ideals meant in it will be kept strong into the future. It will be The New Earth Constitution and will be a great achievement for all mankind. The New Earth Festival will be held in order to bring the likeminded together and to bring about a massive forum and celebration when we finally achieve this momentous achievement.

For millennia humanity has utilized money as a technology, it has enslaved and destroyed and even starved through its inadequacies, when the Evolution New Earth Festivals begin it will bring an era of celebration unlike any time before in humanity. As the Evolution society grows, bringing with it freedom and truth and abundance every nation on earth will be given reason to rejoice after the darkness of today.

BUSINESS MODEL, AND MEMBERS NEEDS

Each Evolution business has ONLY the ability to supply as much of its services to members as it makes in 'profit'. Overall, the objective is to eventually control the resources required to attain self-sufficiency and close the production loop and hence make production cost nothing.

i.e. If Evolution owns a company making shirts it has overheads such as the purchase of material or fibre and electricity, among others. It needs to sell as many shirts as it needs to cover those costs before it can start to supply the members. But as Evolution grows and purchases a solar company and a fibre company it can effectively supply itself with those needs cutting those costs.

The other main costs in the businesses will be any payments required to pay that business off and any employee costs, required in the maintenance of that business. The employee's will be eventually replaced with new members fulfilling their work requirements. Following Evolution principles future plans will be to develop robotics to replace these workers as much as possible cutting those operational costs out as much possible.

As it grows the coop will be able to cut its own costs increasing its profit margin every time it takes on a new resource meaning it can either supply more to the members or grow faster.

With each part of the supply chain that is bought into the corporation it reduces the need to make money at all. Once all businesses are owned outright, and employees have been replaced with automation or new members the need for profit or money disappears entirely.

Profits only purpose at that point is to allow us to grow making more services available for existing society members and the ability to develop more housing and infrastructure for more people to become members.

Eventually Evolution will become large enough to support however many sponsors have been there supporting the coop and even more, everyone in the entire world, to leave money once and for all in an abundant first-class society.

A consideration to be mentioned here would be that each individual business doesn't need to make profit even at first as long as the overall corporation profit is covering all business overheads

I.e. The aforementioned shirt business might need to supply all its available shirts to Evolution members cutting into its profit margin and this wouldn't matter as long as Evolution's other businesses were making enough profit to pay the overheads from the shirt business as well as their own.

FAMILY, COMMUNITY AND THE MODERN TRIBE

In the fast-paced life that the finance system brings with it, there is little space for family and community. In the modern world we spend so much of our lives in pursuit of the elusive dollar that many important aspects of our lives suffer but among the parts of our lives most hurt is that of our relationship with our communities and especially our families. Most people working many hours a week find very little time for interaction with their family and the community around them. As the high pace gets faster and faster, we find less and less time for those people most important to us. Human beings are social beings and most people yearn for social interaction.

We find it hard to interact with people from different socio-economic positions and often our own circle of friends will change as we ourselves succeed in achieving different levels of financial freedom.

This happens because generally people socialise with people in their own socio-economic group, and so when a person's socio-economic position changes they become the 'have' where their friends are 'have nots.' They want to enjoy the new freedom that comes with being a 'have' and their friends can't live the same lifestyle. They know they can't give all their friends the same lifestyle and to try to do so even with a few would greatly impact on their own and so they end up around other people at the same level of financial freedom and their circle of friends changes.

In a world where everyone has access to the same level of freedom people naturally come more together and the class separation in society today will rapidly break down, friendships will never be influenced by financial status and community will be more able to flourish.

The separation and breakup of families can be attributed to many social issues and could take up another whole book, however finance related pressures have directly and indirectly been a major cause of this socially devastating problem.

In the last few decades, the rate of family disruption and marriage divorce has skyrocketed. Today many families have been destroyed with many emotionally devastated children with confidence issues and bad social skills being the sad result within our society.

Money issues between a man and a woman in relationships can often lead to bitter and hurtful arguments and conflicts. The inability to succeed in the dream of financial freedom that we all have can result in hurt and blame that can become irreconcilable. The stresses of the modern money world, with pressures all around to pay the bills or lose the house can lead to depressions and anxieties that can deeply effect the way we are relating with those around us again leading to conflict in the home. Domestic violence rises constantly as the frustrations and issues that come from financial slavery bring anger issues to the surface of our personalities.

Health and help are strictly budgeted in our current system, as explained elsewhere, and people who really need help in finding their self and their being, are receiving punishment and incarceration instead.

We are taught from a young age that separating away from our parents and going on the journey of career is the right thing to do. That getting out in the work and money world and standing on our own two feet is what makes us an adult. The result of this is that many families separate when a child comes of age, with the child moving to a different place for work and losing the closeness and support of the family unit.

The problems here among many other unmentioned issues mean that Instead of being there with support our system is pushing families apart and forcing the increase of further social decline, even in our very homes.

There is a conspiracy theory, and we aren't saying that it happened, that groups among the financial elite orchestrated the woman's rights movement. Seeing the consciousness and awareness change that was occurring and the need in society to find true sexual equality they manipulated the movement in a way to ensure that women were made to, and more felt self-empowered by, joining the work force. This ensured that women were marching themselves alongside their men into self-inflicted economic slavery and made the consumer/employment system much larger. Again we aren't saying that this occurred and mean no disrespect for the many courageous women that have fought so hard for equality and rights but rather wish to point out that it was VERY much in the best interest of those financial elite to have things go in the way they did.

In our past families worked together and thrived together, supporting each other through all the turbulence that life can bring. We were there for each other, our sons and our daughters, our brothers and our sisters intimately in tribes ensuring a network of love and help for those around us and each other. We stayed together and grew together for the entire journey of our lives. This larger extended family unit naturally led to much closer community.

In Evolution community will evolve in ways we yet can't imagine. With the release from stress and with the freedoms, equalities and opportunities that come from a resource based economy at the heart of our social system, with the time, opportunity, places and encouragement to grow and live among our families and friends, with the social support available, with the free and easy world communication and travel that will occur, and the way social gathering will change, the coming of Evolution will naturally usher in a new modern kind of tribe that will encompass all the people of the world.

DIVERSITY, THE KEY TO SOCIETY'S ADVANCEMENT

One of the Evolution core guidelines is to promote and cultivate diversity. A major factor in a culturally advancing society is diversity in thought. Through this diversity comes unusual and new ideas allowing for the advancement of the culture within the society. The more ways at looking at a problem the more likely it will be overcome.

People are naturally individual. Through the events of their lives and their genetic makeup people discover different ways of looking at life. Many say, it is this difference in people that makes up the spice of life.

In Evolution people are encouraged to find themselves, in all aspects of the way they live. In Evolution design, will be the groundwork for people's diversity to flourish. It will be designed to allow different housing options, different education options and complete freedom as to how its members live their lives. Another Evolution guideline is to follow human rights, and this means that all schools of philosophical thought will be given their space as long as it doesn't result in harm to others or the environment.

There will be many lessons to learn in the balance of coming together as one people in Evolution, our history and individual culture within our world is at the heart of who we are, but we are seeing more and more that we are one species here experiencing this journey through space and time together and as we come together in community a new culture of one people will naturally arise.

RENEWING OUR PLANET

Over the last centuries of the industrial revolution and through the age of capitalism we have done horrendous damage to our precious home. From the removal of forests through to massive mining operations, from toxified rivers to islands of plastic in our ocean's humanity has left terrible scars across the beautiful planet we call home and all for such terrible and unnecessary reasons. It will take us many, many years and a great deal of work and resource to clean up what we have done as a society to the environment.

Even as this is written with all the awareness that humanity has gained this continues, with destruction happening at an incredible rate all around the world. For our species, our children, our future this NEEDS to stop.

We have and have had the technology to change the way we use resources and do our production available for a long time. We have had the technology to repair much of the damage we have done available as well, but for reasons of profit and finance these technologies have never been used or furthered. Someone would either lose money or there is no money to be made in their development. Instead we continue with our selfish destruction.

In Evolution in order to ensure the highest standard quality of life possible for its members the corporation can never do damage to the environment as this indirectly impedes on the quality of life of its members. Not only can it not do damage, but it is also essential for Evolution to clean up damage already done to act towards the goal of increasing the quality of life once again of its members.

Once Evolution has become self-sufficient and removes money from the equation it will have the ability and the need to work towards fixing these terrible issues and damages we have done to the earth. With money no longer holding it back Evolution society will have the ability to do anything it has the resources, the technology and the will to do.

Although it will use the latest of automated technology there will still be work to be done. In the first years of Evolution these great social clean-ups will come at the expense of its member's lifetime productivity hours. The Evolution society will balance them into the average society man hour needs equation as a matter of course. We have made this damage and we have to clean it up, and our children will too.

From cleaning the ocean to reclaiming the forests, from repopulating our fauna to desalinating destroyed regions all will be on the planning board for Evolution in the near future.

NOT UTOPIA JUST COMMON SENSE

Humans are flawed and imperfect. The life experience that we are here living is filled with uncertainties and the unknown. Accidents and misfortune happen, and the best laid plans can fail. No system can be perfect in this life, as that is not the experience we are here for and it's not possible for that kind of perfection in this reality.

At the moment we live in a system that promotes the base internal immoralities of humanity. We are encouraged on a daily basis to do things that impede on our internal sense of right. From small, unnoticed or not thought about things like using electricity made from coal to very serious infringements such as bribery and corruption or massive environmental destruction we are placed in situations where it is better off for us personally to do the wrong thing.

Evolution is not Utopia or a perfect world. There will always be an amount of wrongdoing and crime from human passion and other reasons. There will always be those in our society that will lust power or have greed in their nature and no matter what system is in play in our society these issues will be a part of life's experience and the removal of money and inequality won't change that.

A resource-based economy society has at its core the encouragement to do the right thing within its very working. It is in people's best interest naturally in Evolution to do the right thing by the community and by the environment bringing out the best in humanity through the society system built in around them.

The concepts that Evolution is based upon are not difficult to understand or really very unusual. When thought about with an open mind having a social system that is designed to promote doing good deeds, community, the environment and human freedom and not a system that promotes greed, destruction, wrong doing and economic slavery is really just common sense.

THE FUTURE, VISIONS OF A NEW SOCIETY

Well what does a resource-based society look like in the future. Once we have reached self-sufficiency and abundance only the imagination can perceive the possibilities. Once money is no longer in the equation only raw materials and our own drive and ingenuity stop us from achieving wonders beyond words.

The Venus Project has shown us through their ground breaking work into social science that a world without money will be a world without war, a world without poverty, near no crime and luxury and technology far beyond anything we could dream of in our current social economic system.

Imagine free health, free education, free food, free power, and free travel. Finally, humanity will be able to let go of this destructive greed mentality that is destroying our world and enter a golden age.

The Evolution will make a world of abundance and comfort, a world of wonders. Once we have taken control of our own manufacture and resource requirements and money is no longer part of the equation, we have the ability to let our creation lose in a new and wonderful world. When the fear of abundance doesn't exist within the system we live in and when and we can realise the true potential of our technology only the imagination, and raw resources becomes the barrier. And by utilising truly renewable environmentally friendly resources and techniques we can now begin on our dreams. A world of gardens, art, luxury and technology becomes a reality.

We envision that in the world of an abundant resource-based economy society, people will be more inclined to naturally travel, seeing new things and experiencing the world now available. With so many things to see and do and now available to us at all but a whim, no material possessions to hold us back and the knowledge that we are secure with food and accommodation anywhere we go the journey will begin.

We no longer feel the need to put something aside for a rainy day because everything we need is there when we need it. We don't need a large house because we don't need to store all the goods that are 'ours'. And we don't need to collect things to make sure we have access to them as we always have access to them. The feeling of freedom that this will bring to humanity will be beyond anything anyone, even the richest in this system, will have felt since before the invention of money.

We envision that the people will come more together. With money comes classes and haves and have nots and the educated and the not educated. When everybody has everything instantly barriers break down as people are now on an even field.

We see a world all but devoid of crime. With the removal of ownership and inequality, with our needs all met, the encouragement to commit atrocious crimes to supply ourselves with things and freedoms is completely gone. With the stress that comes from always being caught in the money systems need to work gone comes a feeling of freedom that will deeply effect our societies psyche and take away much of the anger and frustration we feel today and this will naturally reflect in the way we treat each other.

Families will feel more secure and this will lead naturally to an increase in happiness in family units and a decrease in domestic problems and breakups. Less broken and destroyed families means more secure happier and well-adjusted children and this is better for our society in so many ways.

Starvation and economic depravity will no longer be a part of our culture. Not only will there be no homelessness occurring on the streets of our western society but eventually the technology and resources of Evolution will spread around the globe finally bringing an end to the needless starvation and homelessness occurring in underdeveloped nations.

War will eventually become a thing of the past, most wars are fought for reasons of resource control. Oil, gold, diamonds, and money itself have all caused major conflicts between nations. In a resource-based society of equality and oneness the reasons for war will diminish dramatically and with the control mechanisms removed the need to manipulate separation among cultures is also removed. This will be a long journey and there will need to be much learning and healing for it to occur, but no more will there be a need in our society to wage death against each other.

Space exploration, underwater cities, incredible marvels of technology even spiritual evolution who knows what will be around the corner once we remove the obstacle of a financial system a new existence will be opened for the human experience.

CONCLUSION

Our world, our species, is in turmoil, this hardly needs to be said. For years we have been warned of how our planet will start to react as we continue to destroy it. The political and financial madness that we see today has been brewing for many, many years. We are coming to a point of climax; a time of choice and this choice is a choice between the life and death of our species.

The truths about money and how it creates scarcity and slavery have been known for millennia. From way in the depths of our history the secret of this control mechanism has been held and cherished, massive wars have been fought their history now left dim in the past, all to control the printing and distribution of money.

The story of Meyer Rothschild and his sons has reverberated around the table of truth seekers for many years. Telling of the families movements through the world of financial control and in particular of the astounding and dastardly manipulative tactics that professedly took place after the battle of Waterloo in 1815, and their now complete dominance of the worlds banking hierarchy. The family has supposedly since become the richest in the world rumoured to control trillions of dollars. Through history Meyer has been accredited with saying 'Permit me to issue and control the money of a nation, and I care not who makes its laws!' and regardless of whether this history is true or not the saying is very true.

A true democracy can never exist in a world that is worked around money and a profit mentality as in truth the person that wins at the game of monopoly and controls the resources of a society is the one that makes the choices for that society.

THE history rEvolution will be a look into the hidden history of how we have been manipulated to come to where we are today. How people and powers behind the scenes have used wealth and religion as control mechanisms to keep us away from secrets that will empower our species into a newfound self-awareness. How we have been separated and made to hate each other in order to divide and concur our society.

"If you don't know your history, you don't know where you are coming from" Bob Marley

I am but a common person, no scholar or genius but I do believe I have a deep civil obligation to my species to do the best that I can. I believe that it is more wrong to stand by and see evil done than to do evil in the first place. I believe that I am a spiritual being and capable of great things, that I am powerful beyond measure.

Recently I watched my father go bankrupt. After many years of hard work to support his family he had a health incident that started a financial collapse that ended with him losing his home and property. My family, my little brothers and sisters have been left in a situation of uncertainty with no security. Knowing how hard and long he worked and seeing him lose his home was one of the last straws inside that has made what you are reading happen. I write this book and make these plans, to try from my position as a commoner to help steer our society away from the precipice that we find ourselves on.

We the everyday people of the earth have to do this, our governments and elected political officials have no power against the superrich, they act as gods in this current system and have no desire to change it. If we continue in this direction we head towards deeper and deeper economic slavery and the sure destruction of our species. It is time for us to realize our own power and face the situation by coming together to make change. We need to for our children and our children's children.

The journey towards a resource-based economy will be long and filled with questions that need to be asked, and I know in this booklet there are plenty of questions raised. They will need to be answered along the way, I haven't got all the answers to those questions and really, a lot of them aren't for me too answer. Many great social minds will have to come together to converse about laws and balances but given the opportunity to ask the questions the answers are there. The Evolution is designed to give us the opportunity to ask and answer those questions.

An abundance economy will not be perfect and there will be many difficulties in getting there, but our current system is flawed beyond sustainable use. For thousands of years we have been held in thrall by economic slavery, separation, inequality, and the rampant destruction that comes from a finance system. It's time we change.

It's time for the financial rEvolution.

The Commoner.
